Kauri may also recommend a specialised gearing strategy to those clients who meet our risk-management criteria. This strategy seeks to increase the returns from investment, whilst maintaining a risk management overlay. The sought results are a significant increase in tax effective income that can be used to enhance wealth accumulation or to accelerate the payment of non-tax deductible debt. The investor is only recommended these strategies where they have a suitable level of tolerance for investment volatility, adequate cash flow, a stable work environment and a five to seven year investment horizon. This strategy requires a disciplined approach to cash flow management and a commitment to formal periodic reviews. The additional risks associated with this strategy will be clearly explained and documented for those clients for whom it is appropriate.
